Project Concept

Subject and Purpose

Melanie is a social worker whose story combines professional growth, family, education, personal accomplishments, and a commitment to continuing to improve herself. The purpose of this bioSite is to tell the story of someone whose life reflects determination, personal growth, family, and service to others. Her journey includes becoming a first generation college graduate, developing a career in social work, becoming a homeowner, getting married, and continuing to work toward new personal and professional goals.

Focused Message

Building a Life with Purpose reflects the central idea of the site. Progress does not always follow a perfect path. Her experiences show how continuing to work toward meaningful goals can lead to accomplishments in different areas of life.

Planned Pages

- Landing: Introduces her story and highlights graduation, homeownership, and marriage.
- About: Features her portrait, biography, career in social work, education, values, and future MSW goal.
- Hobbies: Features traveling, being on the water, and attending sporting events.

Planned External Resource

The future About page will include a link to the National Association of Social Workers as an external resource related to her profession: <https://www.socialworkers.org/>

Subject Interview

1. How would you describe yourself and your personality to someone who has never met you?

I would describe myself as caring, determined, and outgoing. I really enjoy connecting with people and making others feel comfortable. I'm also very goal-oriented. When I decide that I want something for myself, I work hard to make it happen, even if there are challenges along the way. At the same time, I like to have fun, try new things, and enjoy the experiences that life brings.

2. What made you decide to pursue a career in social work?

I originally became interested in social work by following in my sister's footsteps. Seeing the work she did introduced me to the field, and I realized that it fit naturally with my personality because I have always enjoyed working with and helping people. Over time, it became a career that I genuinely enjoy and feel connected to.

3. What was your experience like working toward your degree, and what did graduating mean to you?

Earning my degree meant a lot to me because I was a first-generation college graduate. My journey wasn't perfect, and I definitely experienced some bumps in the road, but those challenges made graduating even more meaningful. I was able to overcome them and accomplish something that was very important to me and my family.

4. What do you enjoy most about being a social worker?

One of the things I enjoy most is knowing that I am doing work that makes my family proud. I also really enjoy the feeling of being able to help someone, whether that means connecting them with a resource, encouraging them, or simply being someone who listens and supports them. Knowing that I can make even a small difference in someone's life is rewarding.

5. What has your career taught you about yourself or other people?

My career has taught me that people are often more capable than they realize. Sometimes they already have the ability to accomplish what they want, but they may need some guidance, encouragement, resources, or just an extra push. I've learned that supporting someone doesn't always mean doing something for them—it can also mean helping them recognize what they are capable of doing for themselves.

6. Of the major milestones you have reached so far, which one are you most proud of and why?

One of the milestones I am most proud of is becoming a homeowner. Buying a home is not an easy process, and it required a lot of preparation, responsibility, and patience. It is also something that I haven't seen many of my peers accomplish yet, so being able to reach that milestone made me especially proud of myself and what I had worked toward.

7. What did becoming a homeowner mean to you personally?

Becoming a homeowner represented stability and determination for me. It gave me something that was truly mine and created a sense of security for my future. It also reminded me that the goals that may seem difficult or far away are still possible when I stay focused and work toward them.

8. How has getting married and starting this new chapter of your life changed your goals for the future?

Getting married has pushed my husband and me to work even harder toward our goals together. It has also encouraged me to dream bigger. Reaching some of the goals I once had has shown me that I am capable of accomplishing more, so now I'm creating bigger goals for myself and for the life we want to build together.

9. What do you enjoy doing when you are not working?

When I'm not working, I really enjoy thrifting and decorating my home. I love finding unique pieces and figuring out how to incorporate them into my space. Decorating gives me a creative outlet, and I enjoy making my home feel comfortable and personal.

10. What are three hobbies or activities that are an important part of your life, and why do you enjoy each of them?

Three things I really enjoy are traveling, being on the water, and going to sporting events. I love traveling because I get to see new places, experience different environments, and create new memories. Being on the water is almost the opposite—it gives me a chance to slow down because I find it peaceful and relaxing. I also love sporting events because of the crowds, excitement, and energy. There's something fun about being surrounded by people who are all excited about the same thing.

11. What is one goal you are currently working toward, either personally or professionally?

One of my biggest goals right now is going back to school to earn my Master of Social Work. I see graduate school as the next step in both my personal and professional growth. I want to continue building on the experience I already have, expand my knowledge, and create more opportunities for myself within the social work field.

12. If someone visited a website about you, what is the one thing you would want them to understand about who you are?

I would want them to understand that I am someone who is always working toward becoming a better version of myself while also trying to make a positive difference for the people around me. My journey hasn't always been a straight line, but I'm proud of where I've come from and what I've accomplished. I value family, stability, helping others, and continuing to set new goals for myself. I hope my story shows that you don't have to have everything figured out from the beginning—you just have to keep moving forward.

Formal Biography

About Melanie

Caring, determined, and outgoing are three qualities that have shaped much of Melanie's personal and professional life. Whether she is helping someone through her work, pursuing a new goal, or spending time with family and friends, she values connecting with people and continuing to grow. Her journey has included several accomplishments that have helped shape the person she is today.

Her interest in social work began after watching her sister work in the field. What initially started as an introduction to a possible career eventually became something that connected naturally with her own personality and desire to help others. She enjoys knowing that her work can make a difference, even when that difference comes from listening to someone, offering encouragement, or connecting a person with resources they may need. Her career has also taught her that people are often more capable than they initially believe and sometimes simply need support to recognize their own abilities.

Education has also played an important role in her story. Becoming a first generation college graduate was especially meaningful because the road to graduation was not always easy. Experiencing challenges along the way made reaching that goal even more important to her and her family.

Several major personal milestones followed. Becoming a homeowner gave her a sense of stability and showed her what could be accomplished through preparation, patience, and determination. Marriage began another new chapter and encouraged her and her husband to think even bigger about the future they want to build together.

Outside of work, she enjoys traveling, spending time on the water, attending sporting events, thrifting, and decorating her home. These interests give her opportunities to experience new places, relax, be creative, and enjoy time with others.

She is now looking toward another major goal: earning her Master of Social Work. Continuing her education represents another opportunity to grow personally and professionally while creating new possibilities within the social work field. Her story is still being written, but one idea remains consistent throughout it. She does not need to have everything figured out from the beginning. What matters is continuing to move forward.

Module 5.2

Research and Design Inspiration

The visual direction for the bioSite is based on Melanie's personality and the information gathered during the interview. She described herself as caring, determined, outgoing, and goal oriented. Her story also includes a balance between professional goals, family, accomplishments, creativity, and hobbies.

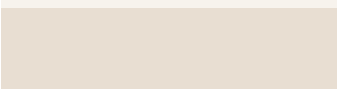

The site will use a warm and approachable design rather than a corporate appearance. Personal photography will be an important part of the design because the photographs help tell her story through real experiences and milestones. Open spacing and simple navigation will keep the photographs and content from competing for attention. The overall design will focus on growth, stability, and personality while remaining easy to navigate.

External Resource Plan

The future About page will link to the National Association of Social Workers. This gives visitors an appropriate external resource for learning more about the profession that is central to her story.

Front End Style Guide

Color Palette

Color	Swatch	Hex	Planned Use
Charcoal		#2F302C	Header, footer, and major headings
Sage Green		#7D8D78	Primary accent and buttons
Dusty Rose		#C88F8A	Secondary accent
Warm Cream		#F7F3ED	Main page background
Light Beige		#E8DED2	Cards and secondary backgrounds
Dark Brown Gray		#38332F	Primary body text

The palette was selected to create a warm and comfortable appearance that fits the subject’s personality and photographs. Sage provides a visual connection to growth and stability, while cream and beige keep the design light. Dusty rose provides warmth without overpowering the photography.

Typography and Interface Style

Major Headings

Georgia will be used for page titles and section headings to create a warm, editorial appearance.

Body Text

Arial will be used for paragraphs, captions, and supporting information because it is simple and readable.

Navigation

The main navigation will use three clear choices: HOME | ABOUT | HOBBIES.

Buttons

Buttons will use a sage green background, white text, rounded corners, and a clear hover state.

Photography

Photographs will be prominent, consistently sized where practical, and paired with short captions or relevance text.

Spacing

Large amounts of open space will separate major sections so the site feels personal and uncluttered.
